Reporter states:

The referent reports about a month ago, Travis was admitted to a psychiatric hospital for seven days for stabilization and treatment of depression. Travis was cutting himself and his mother, Marilyn, had found a poem stating he intended to commit suicide in his room. When he was released from the hospital, he began receiving Comprehensive Child and Family Treatment (CCFT) services. The referent reported the family has not been following through with the safety plan, in that, Travis continues to have access to harmful objects and is unsupervised for extended amounts of time. It is difficult to make contact with the family to schedule appointments; therefore, his attendance in treatment has been sporadic. When the referent speaks with the mother, it appears she minimizes the seriousness of the situation. The mother has made statements that she feels Travis is just "wanting attention and needs to grow up". The referent reports the times when they were able to be in the home, they witnessed disagreements among family members, and is concerned things will continue to escalate.
