Baseline Survey

- Survey was sent to all hospitals participating in the initiative.
- Goal was to gather data on current policies, training programs, and perceived gaps so we can identify areas for improvement and develop targeted strategies to enhance care for hypertensive pregnant patients in Idaho.
- One takeaway was that while all reporting hospitals reported having an up-todate hypertension policy for perinatal patients, only a quarter of reporting hospitals reported that these policies were always followed.
- In addition to questions on policies and training requirements, we also directly asked hospitals about what they thought their gaps were, and what would be most helpful to help improve in the near and long term. These responses are directly informing the design of our Idaho specific toolkit and planned educational offerings as we prepare for the initiative.
