Technology can have both positive and negative impacts on children's lives. On the positive side, technology can provide access to information and educational resources, as well as opportunities for communication and socialization. On the negative side, excessive use of technology can lead to problems such as lack of physical activity, poor sleep habits, and difficulty with face-to-face communication. It's important for parents and caregivers to set appropriate limits and guidelines for children's use of technology to minimize negative effects and maximize the benefits.

EXPONENTIALLY WORSE! Kids no longer want to play outside and use their imaginations! Kids are so addicted to the fast-paced electronic entertainment found with their phones, gaming consoles, and computers that anything else outside of that is boring to them. Kids sit around and get obese because all they want to do is play with their electronic toys.

Kids write with such atrocious grammar because all they ever use is chat speak abbreviations. It's ridiculous!!

I tell my niece it's almost time for breakfast. "You need to come to the kitchen in two minutes, okay?"

My niece looks at me, impassive.

"Alexa," she says, "set a timer for two minutes."

I have lived in India for 22 years, and USA for 8 years. I'll try to answer the question disregarding visa issues, location of family or where you grew up, to be as objective as possible.

Let's break it down into some major factors that constitute a fulfilled life,

1. Family and friends,
2. Educational opportunities,
3. Economic opportunities,
4. Real Estate,
5. Food and culture,
6. Safety,
7. Infrastructure and cleanliness,
8. Healthcare,
9. Public transport,
10. General social life,
11. Reservation,
12. Weather

Now let's rate each on a scale of 1 to 10 in each category.

1. Family and friends - India 8, USA 1
Family is a central part in Indian soc
