

JEOPARDY JEOPARDIZED

by Miles Mathis

November 28, 2024

Today it was widely reported that an Episcopal priest in his collar was unable to answer most of the Bible category on Jeopardy, the last two clues remaining unanswered by all three contestants. Strange, since even I knew the answers, and that is the last category I would pick. I am not a Biblical scholar. But you didn't need to be, since the $800 question was

“Why beholdest thou” this 4-letter thing “that is in thy brother’s eye, but considerest not the beam that is in thine own eye?”

You probably know the answer is “mote”. Even non-Christians know that phrase. So how could an alleged priest miss that? Well, here is the clue in this mystery everyone missed, including all those in the media reporting it.

Kevin Laskowski, of Falls Church, Virginia, who is priest-in-charge at St. John’s Episcopal Church in Centreville, Virginia, was among the contestants dealing with the category “Quoting the King James Bible.”

Two glaring give-away clues there, actually. Both clues are in the first five words. Did you find them yet?

Clue one: Falls Church. That's the location of the CIA. His church in Centreville is about two clicks (just across I66) south of Chantilly.

Clue two: Laskowski. You may think that is Polish, and it is, but it also probably Jewish. See Philip Laskowsky, famous Yiddish composer. Also Slavic scholar Roman Laskowski, professor at Jagiellonian University. As you may remember, I have outed the Jagiellons as extremely prominent Jews in the ancestries of the Kings and Queens of Europe, including King Charles. Also see Jewish actresses and designers named Laskowska.

But it gets better. If we go to the website of St. John's Episcopal in Centreville, we find that the nursery is run by Gluay Zimmerman. Another Jewish name. The deacon is Rev. Steve Busch, who just happens to be a 21-year Marine corps veteran. And do you want to guess his rank? C'mon, you know it. Lieutenant Colonel. I am not kidding you! So let's see if this guy is at LinkedIN. Guess what, he is, but he is not listed as a Reverend or a Deacon. Steven Busch, Fairfax County, 21-year Marine veteran and lieutenant colonel, but no mention of being a reverend or deacon, and nothing listed under licenses and certs. But he was a senior management consultant at IBM for 19 years, retiring in 2016. As such he liaised with DoD. He came out of National Louis University, which uses the delta as its insignia. He has a son, age 43, apparently a junior, also of Fairfax, Quantico, and Centreville. So maybe FBI.

But we still aren't finished. In Laskowski's bio at St. John's, it ends with this

He enjoys card magic, industrial metal, and the fun things people put at the end of their bios.

Are you paying attention? The fun things people put at the end of their bios. . . like three big clues admitting I am right. His cover is blown.

Which leads us to dig a bit deeper on this guy. His church bio says he was in philanthropy before becoming a priest, and if we Google on him we find this philanthropy was the National Committee for Responsible Philanthropy, started by Rockefeller III. Just one more indication he is an agent. NCRP was initially run by an Eisenberg and an Asher, so the usual. The first thing they did after being founded in the 1970s is a full-frontal assault on United Way, for being church-based and not leftist enough. Seeing this attack on churches looks familiar, especially after the events of the past five years, and indicates a further CIA infiltration of churches to blow them from the inside—no doubt in this case to rechannel charitable giving back into the pockets of the rich.

Of all their employees, NCRP chose that picture of Laskowski for major promotional material, along with that other Jewish lady.

So this church looks like another CIA front. We have previously seen a lot of those in NYC, but this is the first I have tripped across in the DC area. Which means Jeopardy is also compromised, now looking like a bonus cash conduit for agents. Figures, since we have known these game shows have been fixed back to the 1950s. See the film Quiz Show.