

AROGA[®] ESSENTIALS ALOE

WELLNESS BEGINS WITHIN[®]

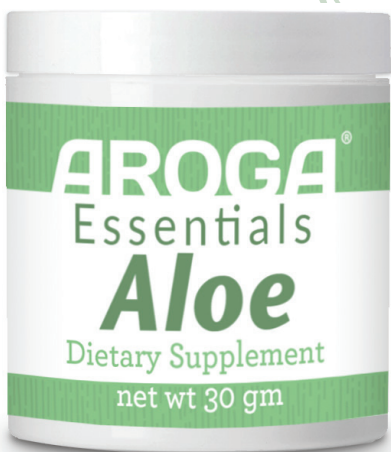

Aroga's Aloe contains a proprietary blend of freeze-dried Aloe vera clear gel and contains all the ingredients found in the clear gel of the Aloe plant, such as glycoproteins, amino acids, vitamins, and minerals. It also contains several sugars that are important in various cellular processes, including cell-to-cell communication.

In addition, unlike any other Aloe product on the market, Aroga's Aloe contains a broad range of poly-acetylated mannans, also known as acemannan, as found in nature, ensuring that the body has the exact size acemannan molecule it needs for any particular job. All the above makes Aroga's Aloe the most powerful Aloe product on the market.

Large acemannan molecules are taken in directly by immune cells in the gut (which houses 70-80% of the immune system), which are stimulated only by the large acemannan molecule, and processed to support the various important functions of the immune system throughout the body.

Acemannan molecules that reach the lower GI tract can be broken down by certain bacteria to its component parts, where they are absorbed into the bloodstream. The individual mannose monomers are then phosphorylated into mannose-6-phosphate, which is necessary to provide energy for the production, and activities, of the myriad of cytokines required for proper immune responses, tissue damage repair, cell-to-cell communication and for the control of cell replication and apoptosis. So, in Aloe, acemannan is available as small, medium-sized, and large molecules, available immediately for use by various cells, or broken down over time into mannose, so that the body has a continual supply of this important molecule throughout the day.

Aroga's Aloe comes in a 30-gram jar of bulk powder. Each scoop provides 1000 mg each day of the most powerful, beneficial Aloe product on the market, at a fraction of the price others charge.
